My Journey with PlayCanvas

I started working with PlayCanvas in July of 2024. After one year of on and off work, I released a playable version of Vortelli's in mid-July 2024. After having spent so long working on the same project, I had no idea if it was any good. It received a small amount of attention from Twitter and the PlayCanvas forums. Around the same time, I sent a demo to Poki. I was absolutely delighted to learn that the Poki team loved the demo and wanted to work with me! I signed their publishing agreement and over the next few weeks, I worked with them to integrate their API and monetize the game with ads.

At the end of August, Vortelli's was soft launched in a few test regions, Brazil, France, Italy, Sweden and Turkey. This was my first time launching a game at scale and I had no idea what to expect. On the first day, my eyes were glued to the stats dashboard and I kept checking my game server logs over and over. I didn't get much actual work done that day! The player count peaked at 12 on the first day of soft launch.

The next day, I noticed a worrying netcode bug and players were leaving angry reviews complaining they couldn't click on anything in the game. After hours of stressful debugging, I found a time code bug in the netcode I'd written where players with low spec devices were sometimes getting desynced and weren't able to interact with objects in the game world. In a mild panic, I managed to implement and deploy a fix. I learned that the `dt` variable can drift over time making it unsuitable for precise time keeping, use `performance.now()` instead.

Unfortunately that was just the start of my problems.

The next morning I was woken up around 4:30am by a notification that all the servers were completely full. At this point I had two servers, one in Dallas USA and another in Frankfurt Germany, each capable of supporting 40 players. At first, I thought this was a bug and maybe departing players weren't getting disconnected correctly? Unsure, I created two more servers and within minutes they were also completely full. Vortelli's somehow had 160 players online! I kept 5 creating new servers and they seemed to be filling up as quickly as I could launch them. This was not 5 a bug, Vortelli's has been featured on the front page of Poki and there were thousands of new players finding 5 my game. I believe Poki's system automatically moves games with strong user engagement to the front page.

Eventually the player count 5 settled down and I got to work on automating the server scaling. I knew I couldn't wake up at 4:30 5 every morning to manage servers. I used Linode's API to automatically create new servers as the player count increases and 5 then automatically shut them down as the player count decreases. I didn't get this 100% perfect on my first try, 5 there was at least one time when I accidentally shut down servers with players still on them. My apologies if 5 you were one of them.

Over the next few weeks, I worked to fix bugs and implement some new features. There 5 were all kinds of helpful suggestions from the PlayCanvas community, Twitter and the Poki team. During the soft launch period, 5 Vortelli's was played 1.1 million times.

PlayCanvas has proven to be very reliable, especially across multiple devices of varying specs. Uploading 5 PlayCanvas builds to Poki is very simple. In the PlayCanvas editor, I can simply download a .zip of my entire 5 project, then upload the same .zip into Poki's developer dashboard.

PlayCanvas and Poki work well together when it comes to error 5 tracking. The Poki dashboard maintains a live feed of the console errors coming from players' browsers. PlayCanvas provides very clear 5 error messages containing script file names and line numbers, even in exported builds which has made it very easy to 5 track down issues even in production.

Despite the occasional stressful situation, this has been a really fulfilling project. I have a 5 few Vortelli's updates planned and of course I'm open to suggestions from the community. If you have any questions about 5 Poki/PlayCanvas, please let me know, I'll do my best to help!
